LARGE-SCALE WARMTH

The days of trying to find clever ways to conceal radiators are well in the past. Nowadays radiators are often more dramatic and sculptural and serve as the focal point of a room. The fish radiator concept by the Giancarlo Zema Design Group was designed for Runtal Italia and with its bright colours and shiny appearance it will certainly make a statement in any interior setting.

A NATURAL SELECTION

Presented at Design Miami/Basel, the Darwin Chair, designed by graphic designer Stefan Sagmeister for Dutch design collective Droog, is covered in 200 different sheets of paper, each in different patterns and colours.

When the top sheet gets dirty or worn the user can simply tear it off revealing the layer below. Where each sheet is removed the perforation eventually becomes a comfortable head rest.

ALL SHIPSHAPE

For sea lovers looking to bring a nautical theme into the kitchen, the new Marecucina kitchen concept from Alno may be just what they have been looking for. With nautical shapes, colours and materials, Marecucina brings the freedom of the open sea into the kitchen.

With this design Alno has attempted to replicate the passion for high quality, precise workmanship and expressive individuality often associated with boat building. The theme is carried through with extra features such as the mast, ship storage, walnut surfaces and chrome plated decorative inserts.

HIDDEN SECRETS

At this year's Salone Satellite, Austrian design trio Pudelskern presented Mrs Robinson, a plain, seemingly unremarkable white chest of drawers. The interesting thing about Mrs Robinson is the hidden detail that is revealed on pulling out the individual drawers.

Each drawer is adorned with a colourful pattern showing that there is more to Mrs Robinson than meets the eye.

TILES THAT LEAF AN IMPRESSION

Karen Ledolley-Smith of KLS Design recently launched a new range of 3D ceramic tiles for the bathroom. Inspired by nature and the shape of fresh green leaves, the baked clay and earthenware tiles have glazed or enamelled finishes and are available in 10 x 10 cm or 20 x 20 cm formats.

They are suitable for use on floors and walls and are made entirely by hand in Normandy, France. The tiles will soon also be available in similar 3D patterns entitled Buds, Twigs and Petals.
